

James Barnett Lecture Series in Humanistic Anthropology

Presents

NATHANIEL BARRETT

University of Navarra

October 28, 2014

4:00-5:30 pm

The Humanities Institute, Austin Bldg, Rm 301

“Energy, Engagement, and Enjoyment:
Religious Experience and the Enhancement of Everyday Life”

Nathaniel Barrett is a research fellow for the Institute for Culture and Society at the University of Navarra in Pamplona, Spain. His research focuses on non-computational theories of mind, especially ecological psychology, enactive theory, and dynamical systems theory, and on the potential contributions of these branches of psychology to our understanding of the perception of religious meaning and value. He also researches and writes about the evolution of religion, axiology (theory of value), pragmatism, process philosophy, and Chinese philosophy. His articles have been published in Process Studies, International Journal for Philosophy of Religion, Journal for the American Academy of Religion, Philosophy East & West, American Journal of Theology and Philosophy, Religion, Brain, and Behavior, Sophia, and the Routledge Companion to Religion and Science.

Co-sponsored by: Humanities Institute, Department of Anthropology, Department of Philosophy, Center for the Ecological Study of Perception and Action, James Barnett Endowment for Humanistic Anthropology

PLEASE RSVP to uchi@uconn.edu or 860-486-9057

For more information please contact Richard Sosis (richard.sosis@uconn.edu).